Editorial

APPOMATTOX AS A SHRINE

Webster defines a shrine as a place where sacred things are kept. Usage allows the employment of the meaning of sacred things as those of historical, cultural and great social worth.

Mr. W. E. Carson, chairman of the Virginia commission on conservation and development, has just issued a handsomely bound volume on "Historic Shrines of Virginia." We are grateful for a copy sent to this desk. The book is illustrated profusely and contains detailed articles about such places as: Arlington, Pohick church, Gunston Hall, Mercer's Apothecary Shop, the Poe Shrine, Bruton Parish church, Stratford, Epping Forest, Birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, Jamestown, Wakefield, etc, etc. In all thirty-five places are chronicled.

Off hand our first impression was the observation that once again Appomattox had been omitted from a book on Virginia's famous shrines and shows cause.

However reflection leads the Times Virginian to observe that Appomattox will never receive adequate recognition from tourists, histories and books of this type until some definite construction is done here.

Complete restoration of all the old buildings at the old Court House is the untimate goal. The proposed federal monument is all right, but of little interest to tourists or for historical purposes. A national or state park is a splendid suggestion to fit into the plans. However, all of these projects require money in a larger sum than is available now or probably for a number of years.

The Times-Virginian cannot urge too strongly that the people in this county take the original step and start a fund to restore just one of the buildings at the Old Court House and use it as a museum to exhibit relics of the Surrender, portraits, Confederate flags, musketry, sabres, scrolls, shot, furniture of the period, regiment lists, etc, etc.

The first step in such a plan is for some organization such as the U.D.C. or the supervisors to sponsor the project. A suitable lease, not immediate purchase of the old tavern, jail or one of the other buildings, would be the next step. Restoring the structure would be the third step and the fourth would be the collection of material for the museum. The fifth would be advertising of the presence of the shrine and practical use of it as a financial and historic asset.

Until APPOMATTOX people take such a step and put it into REALITY, the Times-Virginian feels that the SURRENDER GROUNDS will remain as they are—merely just another hidden and frozen asset.

"MISS" PERKINS

From several angles the most unfortunate choice for public office made by president Roosevelt has been "Miss" Frances Perkins, as secretary of labor in the cabinet.

Despite the fact that she is married, the secretary elects to pose under her maiden name as "Miss" Perkins. That in itself does not commend itself to the better-minds of America.

The facts of the case are that the secretary has exhibited a deplorable lack of insight into the problems and facts of the nation as a whole and has been woefully provincial.

Sometime ago "Miss" Perkins made the remark that one way to revive the shoe industry of the nation would be to "Put shoes on the South."

That gets under our skin as a remark of an ignorant, prejudiced, calloused and deformed mind, unfit to hold a position in a president's cabinet. "Put shoes on the South", indeed. We suggest as a more practical panacea, that "Miss" Perkins put the legal "Mrs." in front of her name and a cloths-pin on her tongue.

Even at that we would be prone to allow tolerance to outweight temper and overlook the quotation in question as a means of gauging the efficiency of the secretary, were it not for the undisputed fact that federal officials in Washington have found the handling of the department by the first lady cabinet member to be politically trying.

HEART'S DESIRE

A philosopher once said, 'The end of work is to enjoy rest.' The Palmist wrote, "Oh that I had wings like a dove for then I would fly away and be at rest."

Youth craves excitement and action, age wearies in the way and longs for the enchanting peace of contentment and rest.

America is still youth and vibrant. Its heart's desire has not yet focused on realities. No national philosophy of life has developed to replace the pressure and speed of hurried expansion. Is it not possible that the depression we have experienced will enable us as a nation to once again weigh the values of life and seek a way that will not worry the soul of its effort nor filch the ideal from the heart?

Saving money by doing without necessary insurance is false economy. You never can tell when your loss will occur. Let us explain our economical, dependable plan of protection. No obligation.

Looking Back 27 Years At Appomattox

Looking back in the files of the Times-Virginian, one sees an unfolding picture of the history of this section of Virginia. We have on file in chronological order, a copy of every issue of the Appomattox and Buckingham Times and the Times-Virginian published during the past forty-one years.

We chanced to look over the issue for June 20, 1906, yesterday. That's 27 years old.

What was Appomattox like 27 years ago? Just for fun we jotted down the list of advertisers in that issue: Merchant's National Bank, Richmond; Buchanan & Son jewelers, Richmond; J. A. McGregor's, Lynchburg; Piedmont Mills, Lynchburg; Hunt, Photography, Farmville; Bailey-Spencer Hardware Co., Lynchburg; Rhinow's Studio, Lynchburg; H. Silverthorn Co., Lynchburg; Central Pharmacy, Lynchburg; L. Lazarus (whiskey this!), Lynchburg; First National Bank, Farmville; W. P. Clark Co., Lynchburg; D. W. Myers, Lynchburg; Lynchburg Piano Co.; J. H. Robertson, Buckingham; N. H. Gregory, Appomattox; Dr. Z. B. Moorman, dentist, Lynchburg; W. T. Doyne, Farmville; A. S. Woolridge, Appomattox; S. H. Franklin, Lynchburg; Loftwich, Legrand and Watts, Lynchburg; Wm. O. Taylor, Lynchburg; Evergreen Supply Co.; State Bank of Pamplin; American National Bank, Lynchburg; The Buckingham Bank, Buckingham, Va.; O. G. Burford, Lynchburg; Fielder and Bay, Lynchburg; L. E. Smith, Appomattox; W. B. Woodson, Concord; W. C. Nowlin, Spout Spring; T. J. Smith & Co., Appomattox; Isbell, Bewman & Co., Lynchburg; H. E. DeWitt, Lynchburg; Jordan & Turner, rollermill, Appomattox; State Bank of Virginia, Richmond; White's Noah's Ark, Lynchburg; Woody-Evans Co., Lynchburg; E. H. Cawthorn, Evergreen; S. O. Fisher, Lynchburg; C. H. Almond, Lynchburg; J. R. Millner Co., Lynchburg; Zimmerman Brothers, Farmville; Seaboard Airline R. R.; B. & O. R. R.; N. & W. R. R.; Perrow-Evans Hardware, Lynchburg, and a number of medicine advertisements.

Many of these firms are still going strong today. Mind you, that was in 1916—the time of a terrible PANIC. This is only a "depression."

In the issue in question, news letters were printed from Farmville, Appomattox, Concord, Buckingham, Arcanan, Southside, Wert, Hollywood, Glenfall and Forest.

Va. Gets Big Share

(By Carter Wormeley)

Richmond, June 17—In pursuance of the administrative policy to provide work for the unemployed Congress last Tuesday passed a public works bill carrying an item of not less than $400,000,000, appropriated for work on state highways. Commissioner Henry G. Shirley, of the Virginia Department of highways, in discussing the effect of this measure in Virginia, says:

"The public works bill just passed by Conress carrying an appropriation for highways of not less than $400,000,000., will supply Virginia with a road fund estimated at between $7,000,000, and $7,500,000.

"This money will provide sufficient work to keep employed the men taken on under the emergency appropriation last year and will give employment to between 5,000 and 7,000 men who otherwise would have been laid off between now and August 30.

"While the details of the appropriation have not been worked out it is thought these funds will be expended on the federal aid and state systems, with a certain amount allotted to the secondary roads."

Begin Taking Cardui Today If You Suffer Like This Lady Did

"WHEN I was a girl, I began taking Cardui," writes Mrs. Maggie Stanfield, of Crandall, Ga. "I was very irregular for twelve months. Nothing did me very much good until my mother began to give me this medicine. Then I got all right, stout and well.

"After I was married, I was in bad health. I began taking Cardui again. I was troubled with my back a lot. Was awfully restless. I could not sleep well. I just weighed 90 pounds when I began taking Cardui. I improved rapidly. Before long I weighed 126 pounds. I felt fine. I was able to do a good day's work."

Cardui is sold by druggists here.

Helping the World

AT A time when serious world problems are causing concern to a large part of humanity, the individual is apt to feel sorely oppressed by a sense of his own impotence, seeing the seeming incapacity of even great statesmen to cope with the difficulties in the road to amicable relationships and world prosperity. The individual in the ordinary walks of life may feel there is little or nothing he can do to help clear these obstacles from mankind's pathway. Wearied in a vain attempt to acquire an enlightened outlook on social and political questions, he may become discouraged and slip into an unresisting attitude.

Such a sense of impotence is as insidious and wrong when individually harbored, as when it would seek to render powerless the best efforts of governments. For it is the individual, no less than governments, needs to be awakened to a renewed sense of responsibility which will quicken endeavor. He must learn to acknowledge the all-power of God, and to use that mankind may utilize spiritual power to an unlimited degree in the betterment of personal and world affairs. When one is in the throes of believing that men are helpless, whether he realizes it or not, he is investing in the sentiment that God, good, may become temporarily dormant or inactive.

To be, or not to be," mused Hamlet. "To think, or not to think," says the wearied individual today. Yet "to be, or not to be" nor "to think, or not to think" is the question; but, What shall we think? Thinking characterizes mankind, and what men think determines in detail what their experiences shall be. "Keep thy heart with all diligence," said Israel's wise king; "for out of it are the issues of life."

Is it not, then, of paramount importance that the individual shall choose to add the weight of his right thinking to the scale seemingly so dangerously counterbalanced by thoughts of limitation, criticism, impatience, greed, resentment, cunningness, and cognitiousness? Christian Science teaches that as man is the image and likeness of God, all Godlike qualities are man's by direction and they are available and may be utilized in the broadest sense in the conduct of human affairs. No one who resolutely seeks to receive from divine Mind the constructive impulses of brotherliness, generosity, gratitude, justice, and loving co-operation, and to express them in daily words and deeds, need ever feel impotent. As he goes about his daily affairs, if he is persistently countering false beliefs with true ideas, thoughts of depression, lack, poverty, and misery with the upbuilding thoughts of the continuity of right, the ever-presence of all enduring good qualities, and the actuality of truth and loving-kindness, he is contributing his share of the true thinking whose healing currents inevitably bring harmony and prosperity. A simple, everyday opportunity for the exercise of scientific discernment between right and wrong thoughts is offered in the reading of newspapers and magazines. All should strive earnestly that in their reading and observation the rejection of the false pictures presented may be complete and the emphatic acceptance of what is constant and good may help to light a beacon of good for the world.

Every statement of spiritual truth is an indication of the power of God, in proportion as the thoughts to which he gives utterance are statements of the truth, are "Nay, nay," to all that would oppose itself to the supremacy of God, good, in world affairs, and "Yea, yea," to every safe and constructive idea that seeks for expression in the thoughts of men. Every individual may align himself with this deific power, applying it in his own thinking, and thus assist in world betterment.

Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, gives this loving counsel to all in her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 241): "Hold thought steadfastly to the command, 'Be still, and know that I am God;' and you will bring these into your experience proportionate to your adequacy of your thoughts." In this effective way we can rout the error of impotence, this enemy to our God-given right of conscious dominion and universal helpfulness. As masters of our thinking we can realize that every pure and honest thought goes out to bless and heal mankind, and that it can never be lost, for it is held in the infinitude of good. Then we can consider anew Paul's admonition to the Philippians: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."—The Christian Science Monitor.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern us; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

While You're Slumbering On a Hot Summer Night

(By Father Darkleaf)

Oft in the stilly night, when June's steamy humidity causes dew drops with perspiration, I have tossed in bed and listened to night sounds: a rumbling train, a howling dog or an inspired chanticleer.

But one night recently I arose from bed and fled to the front porch to seek relief from the sweltering heat of one of June's hottest nights.

Midnight came and passed and the witching hours of magic swaying trees and mysterious cat-calls swept sulteringly by.

Then there pierced the night air a blasting scream of an approaching train. On its heels came the ding-donging of a grossing safety bell. Immediately there was the siren shrieks of engine bells and the roar of escaping steam. A mail-train snorted and stormed as it halted in front of the station.

Seldom have I heard such bedlam. The engine bell clanged, the crossing bells donged, the boilers poured forth steam, brakemen and firemen yelled, mail trucks rumbled up and down . . . it sounded like November 11, 1917 on Broadway.

Fully five minutes the excitement prevailed. I expected to see citizens of the town hastening down to find the cause of the hubbub, clad in pajamas and unmentionables. Then the engine bell rang faster, the boilers screamed viciously and in a mighty triumphant outburst of noise the mail-train passed on, echoing in its wake the final tolls of the crossing bells.

I have lived beside a railroad track most of my life. I have never been disturbed at night by a passing or stopping train. But I had no conception of how much noise one really gets into the habit of sleeping through.

QUICKER, BETTER RELIEF from use of Black-Draught

"I have taken Black-Draught, off and on when needed, for twenty-five years, for it is easy to take," writes Mr. George T. Wharton, of Petersburg, Va. "I take it for constipation and when I have that dull, tired feeling. I take it for colds and other complaints where a good laxative is needed, and I believe it gives me quicker and better relief than any other medicine I know. It certainly has been a help to me."

Liver Sufferers Amazed At Results Obtained From Remarkable New Treatment

Thousands Reporting Sargon Soft Mass Pills Have Brought Them Lasting Relief From Constipation—Sour Stomach—Sick Headaches — Gas—Bad Breath—Coated Tongue —Nervousness and Dizzy Spells After Everything Else Had Failed.

If Your Liver Is Not Performing Its Proper Functions—Sickness — Suffering and Ill Health Are the Inevitable Result.

Science Has Proved That Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, Laxative Pills, Herb Teas or Extracts Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile.

Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of the effects produced by this natural cleanser of your liver and bowels. It makes you feel years younger, stronger, healthier and happier. It brings back the old color to faded eyes and cheeks, restores the appetite and sound digestion—gives you a new outlook on life itself.

Bile in nature's laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, gas and disease germs.

When your liver becomes sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for poisons and putrefaction. You are full of gas and indigestion and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sour stomach.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills remove the cause of this condition in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, thorough and natural in their action there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and you are amazed at all you gradually realize the done until you are well again. As a laxative of any kind, Sargon Soft Mass Pills are not to be mistaken. There are only a few naturally recognized substances which will actually eliminate a liquid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them. Only 50c for a full 30-day treatment.
